AIA/CES Reporting Details

All attendees will be eligible to receive AIA continuing education for attending this course by completing the electronic form sent via email after the conference.

Continuing education questions can be directed to aaaj@aia.org.

Course Description

The JFR award submissions provide a unique opportunity to review the most current thinking about justice facility design. In this session, the jurors will share their take on the issues raised about justice facility planning and design - and the new database of past JFR projects will be introduced. Members of the audience will have the opportunity to participate in the dialogue.

Learning Objectives

To understand:

1. What constitutes excellence in justice facility design.
2. Emerging trends in courthouse and correctional facility design.
3. The challenges posed by historical renovations of courthouses
- balancing preservation with modern functionality and security.
4. The benefits of post-occupancy evaluations on award-winning projects - and the new database of JFR projects available on the AAJ website.
