

THE RMH PRIZE

Call for Candidates for the 27th Richard Morris Hunt Prize 2017 Application

Purpose

The Richard Morris Hunt Prize (RMHP) is an intensive and curated six-month program, divisible in two or three periods, that carries a $20,000 award for registered architects to pursue research related to contemporary challenges in historic preservation. Each year only one Fellow is selected. However, in years where the applicant pool demonstrates exceptional merit, a Scholar may also be selected by the Jury from the Fellow candidates for a shorter five-week specialized course of research and study with a $5,000 award. As part of the RMH experience, the Fellow/Scholar benefits from guidance and access to a network of the leading historic preservation professionals in France and the United States.

The American Architectural Foundation (AAF) and the French Heritage Society (FHS) established the Hunt Fellowship in 1990, and it continues to foster and support cross-cultural professional exchange between France and the United States. U.S. design professionals study in France and French design professionals study in the U.S. during alternating years.

The Fellowship is underwritten by a generous grant from LafargeHolcim. A generous anonymous donor supports the Scholar residency.

Process

Interested 2017 RMHP candidates should be U.S. citizens, registered architects with 5+ years work experience, have a minimum of professional working proficiency speaking skills in French, and have the ability to travel to France for six months (spread across two or three periods.) The travel and research program for the American honorees will be established and managed under the guidance of the Managing Team in France. In addition, the Fellow/Scholar must submit a Final Report to AAF and FHS within one year of the last month of the Fellowship, the Scholar within six months. The Reports are intended to respond to the current issues in contemporary architectural practice.

Please submit letters of interest in French and English and your curriculum vitae to Thom Minner, U.S. RMHP Program Director, at tminner@archfoundation.org by July 31, 2016.

In your letter of interest, please identify:

- Your proposed subject of study,
- Your academic and work experiences that prepare you to undertake this Fellowship (it is important to demonstrate that you have sufficient subject matter knowledge and background in the fields that you are wishing to study), and
- How you will apply this international experience to your professional career after the Fellowship.

Review of Applications

At the close of the application period, AAF will review applications and contact selected applicants for a phone interview. Once the phone interview is complete, the applicant may be invited to submit a more detailed written proposal, letters of support, and his/her portfolio (please do not submit beforehand unless asked to do so). The RMHP Jury will consider innovative and thoughtful proposals that meet the intent of the Fellowship, which is to benefit the profession as a whole.

By October 2016, three to four select applicants will be invited to interview with the RMHP Grand Jury in Washington, DC. Jury Interviews will occur in November/December 2016.
