TH103 Leading Design for Worldwide Impact: 2020 AIA Institute Honors for Collaborative Achievement

Thu 14 May 2020, 8 to 9am, Los Angeles Convention Center

This year's most influential collaborators, the Global Design Initiative for Refugee Children \(GDI\) and Robert Silman Structural Engineers discuss their collaborative design strategies that have produced a legacy of preservation and permanence, while fulfilling the urgent need for architects to develop new tools and methods to assist the humanitarian response for immediate situations for Syrian refugees.

Join us for an inspiring event showcasing what real collaboration looks like—and where it can lead you.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

1. Identify the means and methods of collaborative teams that generate opportunities for innovation
2. Prepare for future success by increasing your understanding of the effort, investment, and challenges encountered in large-scale, collaborative projects
3. Discover new avenues for moving beyond a siloed approach and creating powerful visions and robust strategies for change through collaboration
4. Collect the best practices of collaborative people and organizations to take back to your community
